A mother's breastfeeding journey matters, it's a natural enchanting experience between a mother and child to bond. Patient safety is important as it helps us to reduce the risk of unintended or unexpected harm during the provision of healthcare, and drive improvements to the care that people receive. At NWAS, we aim to build a safer culture and safer systems by looking at patient care that goes well, and where things could have gone better. We also make sure we hear the views of our patients and staff, and what they feel is important in patient safety in a variety of ways.
